

Digital Active Women - How counselling and information services can be better received

Co-researchers wanted!

Do you have the time and interest to work on a research project? Would you like to help find out what digital counselling and information services for recently migrated women should look like, in order to actually help them? Would you like to advise and support the stakeholders who offer information and counselling on the topics of education, health, work, social and political participation to help them improve their online services?

You have the opportunity to do so in the project Digital Active Women!

As a co-researcher you will

- interview recently migrated women about their needs and evaluate these;
- examine digital counselling and information services offered by various providers and evaluate them;
- present your results to the public;
- advise stakeholders on how to improve their services for recently migrated women.

By participating in the project Digital Active Women, you will give recently migrated women a voice and make their needs for online counselling and information visible.

You will receive a small compensation for your participation. Previous academic experience is not required. You should have lived in Germany no longer than seven years.

If you are interested, please contact:

Ildikó Pallmann
Minor-Projekt-kontor für Bildung und Forschung gGmbH
Tel.: +49 (0)30 457989518
E-Mail: i.pallmann@minor-kontor.de

We thank you in advance for your interest and look forward to working with you!

Best wishes,
Ildikó Pallmann

The project is coordinated by Minor - Projekt-kontor für Bildung und Forschung.

The project is funded by